ABSTRACT

Some IDEAS to get you started writing your abstract:

- Describe the problem addressed
- Explain why it's relevant
- Assert your thesis
- Identify major ideas
- Review the conclusions drawn

TABLE OF CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION

The INTRODUCTION should:

- a. Introduce the topic
- b. Give background information regarding your topic
- c. Explain why you are taking the position you are
- d. Briefly offer evidence supporting your position (as needed)
- e. Assert your THESIS SENTENCE

Your THESIS SENTENCE will

- a. Make a claim: It is a SHOULD statement
- b. Clearly state the purpose of your paper
- c. Provide a structure for your argument

POSITION

The POSITION section should:

- a. Tell the reader the reasons WHY you are taking the position you have chosen
- b. Include 2 to 4 position points and offer research supporting each position point.
- b. Present the points and information in a logical order
- c. Avoid including statements that lack obvious support

Remember: If you start telling the reader HOW it needs to be done, then the focus must shift to telling the reader WHY it should be done (i.e. It should be done because....).

COUNTER ARGUMENTS

The COUNTER ARGUMENTS section should:

- a. Tell the reader what obstacles/opposition there is to the THESIS, not the position points
- b. Include at least 2 counter arguments and their rebuttals
 - a. (rebuttal=prove the counter argument wrong or incorrect through evidence)
- c. Provide research/support for each counter argument
 - a. You will want to research opposing viewpoints
- d. Present rebuttals for the counter arguments
 - a. Your rebuttals also need research that substantiates why the counter arguments are invalid

RECOMMENDATION

The RECOMMENDATION section usually, but not always, should include the following:

- a. A restatement of your THESIS
 - a. Do not exactly repeat (or cut and paste) your thesis.
- b. A summarization of your position points, counter arguments, and rebuttals
- c. A restating or summarization of research (re-cite where needed)
- d. A plan of action (if applicable)-i.e. how it can be implemented; what an agency needs to do to get started
- e. A policy recommendation (if applicable)

REFERENCES

This is a composite of all sources you have used in your paper, either by paraphrasing or direct quotation. For references, it is important to be very exact, including: what is capitalized, what is italicized, and where the punctuation is.

Remember: References are double-spaced, have a hanging indent, and are alphabetical.

The REFERENCE section must:

- a. Use APA format - owl.purdue.edu is a good resource
- b. Be in alphabetical order and use the hanging indent tool to indent the second and subsequent lines
- c. Every listing cited on the REFERENCE page must be found in the body of the paper in the form of an in-text citation

APPENDIX

THIS SECTION IS OPTIONAL

- ❖ The Appendix/Appendices could/should:
 - Contain supplementary information referenced in the body of the paper or information that supports the text, such as:
 - Graphs
 - Figures
 - Maps
 - Policies, etc.
 - Be alpha-numbered (Appendix A, Appendix B, Appendix C, etc.)
 - Use the same font and paragraph spacing as the rest of your paper, except where the Appendix is a reproduction of another document.
